

ABSTRACT

A method of receiving messages by a communication terminal. The method includes receiving symbols of a frame of a transmitted encoded message, and decoding the frame based on fewer received symbols than the number of symbols in the frame.